

Logic Branch Chain: Advisor Execution Pathways

Logic Branch	IF (Condition Trigger)	/ THEN (Action Step)	/ Next	Additional Context / Notes
Applicant Screening	IF an applicant reaches the final 'Test' stage (Meeting 3) of the interview process...	THEN shift the environment (e.g., to a cafe) and re-ask trait questions from Meeting 1.		Changing the setting relaxes the candidate, allowing you to check if their answers remain consistent or if they were "bending their perspective" earlier.
Performance Management	IF a team member fails to load client financials or actively vocalizes resistance to the portal...	THEN initiate the Advisory PIP Template.		Defines strict "start" and "stop" behaviors and sets 30/60/90-day review milestones to protect the firm's visible learning culture.
Fee Negotiations	IF an advisor anticipates an upcoming fee estimate blowout or job scope creep...	THEN utilize the "Prime & Range-Link" approach early in the engagement.		Priming sets expectations before the emotional event occurs, reducing client shock when evidence of the fee increase is finally presented.
Team Feedback	IF a team member finishes presenting a new field intelligence case study...	THEN colleagues must reply using the Feedback Model, strictly starting with what "stands out" positively.		Enforcing this rule prevents defensive emotional barriers and maintains the psychological safety required for a Visible Learning Culture.

COI Engagement	IF a Centre of Influence (COI) prospect is guarded and acts like "Mr. Prickly"...	THEN use the "Event, Cause, Effect" method and deliver the story strictly in the 3rd person.	Allows the prospect to "save face" by removing personal blame. Positions the advisor as an empathetic problem solver rather than a salesperson.
Workshop Debrief	IF a team fails the Paper Tower task due to chaotic, rushed building...	THEN ask if they separated "brainstorming" from "assessment" and review the 9-step team process.	Proves experientially that process-driven logic (planning) yields higher financial profits than outcome-oriented panic.
