

Get the Job - Marketing:

This content is designed to help accountants transition from basic tax compliance to high-value consulting and is suitable for those looking to enhance client relationships, effectively frame their services as aspirational, and provide meaningful strategic oversight.

The content is primarily of a STRATEGIC and COMMUNICATION nature and therefore, serves as a turnkey system equipped with communication templates, predictive modeling, and legal safeguards to help advisors protect intellectual property, identify growth opportunities, and prevent financial "surprises".

The material is of an entry level and suits new and experienced advisors alike.

1st Response & Proposal Templates

- Benefits: These templates provide a structured, "Agile Theory" approach to project management, breaking engagements down into manageable "sprints" (Feasibility, Planning, Implementation).
- How it helps the business owner: It reduces the financial risk of committing to a large, expensive project upfront by focusing on a $5,000 initial feasibility stage (requiring about 5 hours of their time) to assess structural integrity before finalizing budgets.
- How it helps the advisor: It establishes clear expectations, secures initial paid work, and positions the advisor as a strategic partner who systematically reviews critical business functions (Planning, Data Management, Marketing, etc.).
- Suitable for: Prospects and existing clients inquiring about large projects or new advisory engagements.

Marketing Campaigns, Quizzes & Video Hyperlinks

- Benefits: These assets automate outreach and act as a "micro-step" between an initial approach and a formal meeting. They utilize video links and quick quizzes to prompt discussions around cash forecasting, business planning, and growth fundamentals.
- How it helps the business owner: It quickly focuses their attention on seasonal risks (like the "perfect storm" of tax and holidays) and encourages them to assess their business assumptions without taking up too much time (e.g., 3-minute quizzes).
- How it helps the advisor: It generates qualified leads, "primes" clients for the theme of an upcoming meeting, and drives inquiries for advisory services without requiring heavy manual sales efforts.
- Suitable for: Existing clients needing a nudge for quarterly planning, or new prospects who need warming up before a sales call.

90-Day Best Practice Training Outreach

- Benefits: Offers a structured, 4-to-5-session training plan delivered via Zoom to teach clients how to use software platforms like Xero properly.
- How it helps the business owner: It trains their administrative staff on correct coding, transaction handling, and quality control, helping them avoid costly mistakes and "surprise" tax bills from the IRD.
- How it helps the advisor: It proactively solves the "birds-nest nightmares" that advisors usually have to clean up at year-end, while creating a new revenue stream ($1,500 - $1,800) paid in monthly installments.
- Suitable for: Business owners utilizing digital accounting software who lack formal bookkeeping training or have inexperienced admin teams.

Crisis Management (COVID-19 Email & Phone Scripts)

- Benefits: Provides a compassionate, structured framework to reach out to clients during economic lockdowns or supply chain shortages.
- How it helps the business owner: It helps them model "Good, Bad & Ugly" revenue scenarios and prepares them to secure bank funding before credit divisions are overwhelmed. It provides clarity by focusing them on one of three core functions: Getting Organised, Getting the Job, or Doing the Job.
- How it helps the advisor: It demonstrates immense value and empathy during a crisis, cementing the client relationship at no initial cost, which often leads to future paid programming.
- Suitable for: All active clients facing sudden economic downturns, lockdowns, or severe market disruptions.

Portal Invitations & System Checklists ("Let the Software do the Lifting")

- Benefits: Email templates ranging from direct to conservative ("mental gym" metaphor) that invite clients to the Advisor-e portal, alongside internal checklists for setting up these accounts via Xero API.
- How it helps the business owner: Grants them 24/7 access to a centralized hub for meeting agendas, action plans, and business improvement templates to help them solve problems and lower stress.
- How it helps the advisor: Standardizes the firm's onboarding process, tracks client engagement, and provides a professional "cloud-based" interface to host their value-added services.
- Suitable for: New or existing clients transitioning to the firm's advisory software platform, as well as internal staff managing client setups.

Third-Party Collaboration & Legal Templates (Consent, Banker Login, NDA)

- Benefits: Formalizes relationships with external parties. The NDA protects intellectual property, while the consent templates allow external advisors (like bankers) to view the client's financial dashboards.
- How it helps the business owner: Improves transparency and trust with lenders, potentially helping them secure funding faster by bringing their banker into their "exposure dashboard". Protects their confidential data during project evaluations.
- How it helps the advisor: Builds referral networks with bankers (who may send unattached clients their way) and legally protects the advisor's proprietary methods.

- Suitable for: Clients requiring bank loans, external banking partners, and prospects evaluating custom software projects.

Website Blurbs & Messaging Plan

- Benefits: Provides ready-to-use copy for website "bands" (attention, problem, position, solution) and slide decks to map out global messaging plans and timelines.
- How it helps the business owner: Clearly and persuasively communicates what the firm can do for them, answering their core questions (e.g., "How much is enough?") in the first 7 to 20 seconds of visiting the site.
- How it helps the advisor: Saves hours of copywriting, ensures all social media, blog, and website marketing is aligned to target market problems, and positions their services (from Basic Accounting to Legacy Packages) in an aspirational way.
- Suitable for: Accounting firms looking to revamp their websites, align their team's marketing efforts, or build a comprehensive communication timeline.

Get the Job - Seminar Delivery

These materials outline various educational team-building activities and professional presentation strategies aimed at improving leadership and mastering the art of professional public speaking.

The content in this section is better suited to senior and experienced advisors and is of an advanced nature.

Here is a review of the benefits, target audience, and value of each template group, followed by a comprehensive source table.

1. Presentation Structuring & Delivery Templates

(Sources: 30 to 40 Presentation Template, Blank Platform Template, Powerful Seminars, Team Workshop Run Sheets)

- Benefits: These templates provide a comprehensive blueprint for designing and scheduling a presentation. They introduce structures like the C.P.D. (Concept, Principle, Detail) hierarchy to prevent information overload and utilize the "Content / Why / Remember" framework to keep the audience anchored.
- How it helps the Advisor: It allows the advisor to design impactful, logically flowing sessions. By breaking the preparation into clear stages (framing, agenda, self-introduction, delivery, and call to action), it helps the advisor maintain authority and position themselves favorably to win future business.
- How it helps the Business Owner: Attendees receive well-structured, highly relevant information that respects their time. Clear "What's In It For Me" (WIIFM) statements and active learning chunks ensure the owner stays engaged and walks away with actionable steps.
- Suitable for: Advisors, facilitators, and educators planning to deliver public seminars, workshops, or boot-camps.

2. Storytelling & Engagement Frameworks

(Sources: Funny Stories, Magic Formula Stories, MFS Drafting Template)

- Benefits: These provide a step-by-step methodology (The Draw, The Plot, The Reveal, The Close) for crafting and delivering anecdotes that capture attention and impart lessons.
- How it helps the Advisor: It gives the advisor a repeatable formula to connect with the audience emotionally and illustrate empathy and credibility without sounding arrogant. It also helps manage the room's energy by creating a "theatre in their mind".
- How it helps the Business Owner: It translates dry, technical, or complex business concepts into relatable, memorable lessons. The non-threatening nature of stories allows owners to internalize the message safely.

- Suitable for: Presenters and coaches wanting to build rapport, break the ice, and inject humor or memorable metaphors into their talks.

3. Team Building Experiential Exercises

(Sources: Paper Tower Model, Paper Tower Review Questions, Paper Tower Task Sheet, Spaghetti Tower Task Sheets)

- Benefits: These templates offer ready-to-run experiential learning games with strict rules, time constraints, and scoring rubrics (e.g., a spreadsheet to calculate the "profit" of a paper tower based on height and material costs).
- How it helps the Advisor: It provides the advisor with a practical tool to observe team behaviors in real-time. The corresponding "Review Questions" guide the advisor through a structured debrief to teach a 9-step planning and brainstorming process.
- How it helps the Business Owner (and their team): It safely exposes internal strengths and weaknesses regarding communication, process management, and personality dynamics. Teams learn how to define objectives properly and brainstorm without judgment, skills they can apply directly to their daily work.
- Suitable for: Corporate teams, managers, and business owners participating in team-building retreats or problem-solving workshops.

4. Strategic Advisory & Sales Presentations

(Sources: Forecast Presentation, Growth Stage Seminar)

- Benefits: These are pre-built slide decks designed to educate audiences on high-level strategic concepts, such as the necessity of scenario planning or the 9 sequential stages of business growth.
- How it helps the Advisor: They serve as a powerful sales tool, shifting the advisor's role from a historical accountant to a forward-looking strategist. It provides a platform to sell bespoke revenue models and growth planning services.
- How it helps the Business Owner: It helps the owner identify their current business stage (from "Launch" to "Exit") and their "profit sweet-spot". It removes the "pass-fail mentality" of standard budgeting and replaces it with proactive action plans to limit losses and sustain lifestyle goals.
- Suitable for: Prospective or current clients who are looking to scale, optimize their cash flow, or transition out of their business.

5. Event Protocol & Feedback Mechanisms

(Sources: Seminar & Entertainment, get.feedback form)

- Benefits: These sources outline networking etiquette, greeting protocols, and structured post-event evaluation.

- How it helps the Advisor: It trains the advisor and their staff on how to professionally "work the room," gather intelligence, and initiate relationships without aggressively selling "out of bounds". The feedback form captures leads and provides data to improve future seminars.
- How it helps the Business Owner: Guarantees they experience a welcoming, highly professional environment where they feel valued rather than targeted. The feedback form gives them a voice to express what content was most useful to their specific industry.
- Suitable for: Firm staff, marketers, and hosts running client appreciation events, networking evenings, or public seminars.
