

Logic Branch	IF (Condition / Trigger)	THEN (Action / Next Step)	Additional Context / Notes
1. Initial Assessment (Design Foundation)	IF the client states, "I need to put together a presentation, workshop, or seminar"...	THEN ask: "Who is your exact target audience, and what are your desired outcomes? Please define these in writing."	Writing outcomes forces clarity. A great design makes delivery easy; do not move forward until this is defined.
2. Core Content Structure (C.P.D.)	IF the target audience and desired outcomes are clearly defined...	THEN guide them to build a C.P.D. Hierarchy : 1. Select one overarching Concept . 2. Break it into Principles . 3. Detail 3 key points (Detail) per Principle.	Remind them to limit the details to 3 points per principle so the audience isn't overwhelmed.
3. Audience Engagement & Learning Styles	IF the core C.P.D. structure is outlined...	THEN ask: "How will you adapt this material to keep the audience engaged and appeal to different learning styles?"	Provide examples: Use facts for Pragmatists , reflection time for Reflectors , logic/input for Theorists , and hands-on activities for Activists . Also, insert short "turn to the person next to you" breaks to maintain energy.
4. Event Planning & Timeline	IF the content structure is finalized and they are ready to plan the physical event...	THEN trigger the timeline planning phase: "Let's build your 5-6 week timeline. Do you have a venue confirmed and an invitation list ready?"	Direct them to plan "First" and "Second" invitations (hardcopy and email), appoint an MC for housekeeping, and set dates for internal dry-runs.
5. Delivery Style Selection	IF the client asks "How should I present this?" OR is moving into the rehearsal phase...	THEN ask: "What is your primary intent for this audience?" • IF to impart skills → Recommend Coach style. • IF to impart information → Recommend Educator style. • IF to solve team problems → Recommend Collegiate/Facilitator style. • IF to inspire action → Recommend Motivator style.	Delivery style changes based on the goal. Ensure they understand they can "jump" from one style to another depending on the specific segment of the presentation.

6. Structuring the Rehearsal Flow	IF the client is doing a full-length rehearsal...	THEN guide them through the 8 Delivery Steps, starting with: "Let's practice your opening. Start with your Psychological Prep, then Connect with the Audience."	Ensure they practice their Honey & Mumford Relevance Statement (a "What's in it for me" statement) and connect using shared "Universals" or by "calling out the ghosts" (preempting negative thoughts).
7. Multi-Speaker Coordination	IF there are multiple presenters or guest speakers involved...	THEN instruct: "Make sure 'Middle' presenters link their material to the first presenter, and 'End' presenters summarize the core principles and provide a clear call to action."	If using an existing client as a guest speaker, ensure they are properly introduced and comfortable with their level of involvement.
8. Final Logistics & Technical Check	IF the seminar date is imminent (e.g., 1 week out or day-of)...	THEN trigger the final checklist: "Have you tested the light and sound in the venue? Make sure to walk the stage to check for microphone drop-out spots."	Assume nothing works until tested. Remind them that handheld mics are unidirectional and should be held at sternum level, and overhead lighting should not blind the speaker or shadow their face.
Networking Boundaries	IF an attendee initiates a deeply technical or bespoke service inquiry during hospitality drinks...	THEN trigger the "Selling out of bounds" protocol.	The advisor must pause the business discussion and state: "I'd love to talk about that more, I'll give you a call Monday."
Event Conclusion	IF the seminar delivery is complete and the "Call to Action" has been made...	THEN ensure staff distribute and collect the "get.feedback form".	Data must be captured regarding content relevance and whether the attendee wishes to be invited to the next scheduled event.
